Like other states, Mississippi has a Public Records Act and an Open Meetings Act, otherwise known as “sunshine laws.” These laws provide that all government meetings and records except those specifically exempt must be open to the public. The best protection for public officials is to have a good working knowledge of the laws, and the exceptions that apply.

For everyone practicing evil hates the light and does not come to the light, lest his deeds should be exposed.
But he who does the truth comes to the light, that his deeds may be clearly seen ... John 3:20-21

OPEN MEETINGS

“Meeting”

Gathering of members of a public body at which official acts may be taken upon a matter over which the public body has supervision, control, jurisdiction or advisory power; “officials acts” includes discussion.

“Public Body”

Defined broadly to include executive or administrative boards, commissions authorities, councils, departments, agencies, or bureaus of the State of Mississippi, and committees thereof.

“Minutes”

A public body speaks only through its minutes. §25-41-11 requires minutes be kept of all meetings of a public body, whether in open or executive session, showing (1) which members present or absent, (2) date, time and place of meeting, (3) accurate recording of any final action taken, (4) record, by individual member, of how they voted on any final action, and (5) any other information that the public body requests be reflected in the minutes.

Conduct of Persons Attending Meetings

§25-41-9 allows public body to make and enforce reasonable rules for the conduct of persons attending its meetings. This includes rules on tape recordings, cameras, etc. Outright prohibitions of recordings and cameras typically not reasonable.

Notice

§25-41-13 says if meeting time, place and manner is set by statute, no other notice required. If not, the public body must adopt and reflect in minutes the time, place and procedures for its meetings, and in such case, no other notice required. Notice of place, time and subject matter of any recessed, adjourned, interim or specially called meeting must be posted within one (1) hour after such meeting is called in prominent place available to examination and inspection by the general public in the building where the public body normally meets and must be reflected in minutes.

Executive Session

Public Body may (but is not required to) go into executive session to discuss only the following:

- personnel matters
- litigation-prospective or actual
- security personnel, plans or devices
- investigations of alleged misconduct or violations of law
- emergency posing immediate or irrevocable harm to persons or property
- prospective purchases, sale or lease of lands
- preparation of admission tests for certain professions
- location, relocation or expansion of business or industry
- line item in budget which may affect termination of employee(s)
- certain school board discussions with individual students, parents or teacher
- Legislature may go into executive session anytime

Procedure for going into executive session:

1. Meeting begins as open; member may move to close meeting to determine whether board needs to go into executive session; vote in open meeting, majority rules
2. Closed meeting: vote taken on whether to declare executive session, requires 3/5 of all members present
3. Board comes back into open session and states statutory reason for executive session
4. Go into executive session, where action may be taken on stated subject matter only; minutes must be kept just as with open session
